Well, that is good to know. OK, let's let her do her work. Thanks.

I reached out to Ex. 3 [CERCLA section 104(e)(7)(42 USC 9604(e)(7))] which is the big producer of crumb for infill.

He informed me that Nancy is chasing the same information.

I think I had better let her sort through all of this.

Yes, I was thinking the same. But that thought is only reinforced now that Dawn took my message to you, forwarded it around so that it apparently got sent to Nancy. Small world.

Thanks for any help that you can provide.

I will contact some of the big tire recycling companies directly and leave your name out of it. Funny thing about Nancy Nord. I reached out to her and she did not get back to me. Must think I'm her competition.

Could you talk to them instead of forwarding my message? I am asking because my initial request has been forwarded around pretty broadly already and now it is back with Nancy Nord! Small world.

If you wouldn't mind having a brief conversation, I would appreciate it. If that is too much trouble, though, I completely understand. Thanks for all that you've done.

If you want me to, I could reach out to one of the larger rubber tire recyclers and ask them for the information? They know who I am and might cooperate with my request.

Thanks, Walt. We already have this. Although it has some useful information, it doesn't have the specific info. that we need. But thanks again for passing it along.
